A day in the snow

Jeff saves his friend

Danger!

On 15th December, 2008, Jeff Kramer, 13, was sledging in the snow with two friends, Keri and Adam.

It was getting late. 'We should go home soon', said Jeff.

'I'm going to go this way. It's quicker', said Keri, and she started to sledge down the hill.

'Watch out for the trees!' shouted Jeff. 'You shouldn't go down there.' It was too late. Keri's sledge crashed into a tree.

The two boys ran down to their friend. Keri was lying next to the tree. Her right arm was under her body. She groaned but she couldn't talk.

'What should we do?' asked Adam.

'We shouldn't move her. Maybe something is broken', said Jeff.

'We should call an ambulance. Adam, you go! I'm going to look after Keri.'

Adam ran off down the hill. Jeff was freezing, but Keri was colder than him. Jeff took off his jacket and jumper and put them on her.

Suddenly he heard a noise. A sledge was coming down the hill very fast and a boy was following it.

'Watch out! My sledge!' the boy shouted.

Jeff jumped in front of Keri. The sledge crashed into him and he fell over.

When the Rescue Service arrived, it took Keri and Jeff to hospital. Keri had a broken arm and her head was badly bruised. Jeff hurt his ankle and had bruises on his back.
